One of the biggest health risks to your cat is cat 'flu which can be caused by a variety of viruses and a highly infectious bacterium called Bordetella bronchiseptica. Symptoms of this disease include sneezing, snuffling, conjunctivitis (inflammation of the lining of the eyes), loss of appetite, discharge from the nostrils, swollen glands, depression and fever. Dogs can also catch the disease from cats. For years, vets have been able to vaccinate for the viral causes of cat 'flu and now this vaccine is available to help prevent a bacterial cause of the disease.

Worth up to & pound70, this amazing offer is valid until 31 January 2007 and the Royal Canin vouchers can be used for food purchases until 31 December 2007.

We all want our cats to live long, happy and healthy lives. Studies show that giving a cat exactly the right type of nutrition to suit its gender and stage of life will help to optimise its health and combat the ageing process. Royal Canin specialises in developing scientifically-based life stage diets for cats of all ages. The company's dieticians have studied the specific needs of male and female cats at each life stage and then created a food for each, optimally meeting nutritional, energy, digestibility and performance requirements. Cats can be fussy eaters and even the best food is useless if the cat refuses to eat it. Royal Canin is also well known for its ability to create extremely palatable foods with the taste cats love.
